

INSPRATION

The design of the faucet, named "Flow", is inspired by the structure of the Bamboo Fountain, which creatively connects the idea of nature with our daily use of water faucet. The name "Flow" is based on the unique structure of the faucet. Differing from the traditional water faucet, "Flow" combines the handle and spout into one part. The water flows down when users pull down the handle, which allows users to experience the whole process of water flowing down, awakening their past experiences and senses with waterfalls and streams in the natural environment. By breaking the stereotypes of the present modern industrial products designs that users are so used to, "Flow" creates a distinct and relaxing experience with nature of using water faucet.
