

Hello,

I'm writing on behalf of Stan Church, Founder and Chief Creative Officer of Wallace Church & Company. Stan has judged numerous national and international design competitions over the years, representing the highest standards of design. Stan now wishes to dedicate more of his time to our industry, and could be available to be a part of your judging panel for future competitions.

Please find Stan's official bio below:

- Stan Church is the founder and Chief Creative Officer of Wallace Church & Co., an internationally recognized brand identity and packaging design firm based in New York City. In his 40+ years with the company, Stan has led Wallace Church & Co. to an accomplished and highly respected agency. Stan oversees creative efforts from inception to realization and has worked on leading consumer brands in nearly every category.

Stan is a graduate and former distinguished faculty member of Parsons The New School for Design, where he established the packaging focus. He has served as a national board member of the AIGA, and was named as an AIGA Fellow in 2011.

A true leader, innovator, and futurist in the industry, Stan's work has been widely published and exhibited. He has been honored with over 500 awards from design's most distinguished organizations. In addition to establishing and maintaining Wallace Church's design standards and integrity, Stan's primary focus is to encourage clients to be brand visionaries.

Thank you,
